

Published based on Replacing A Damaged United States Passport - The Required Paperwork And Fees

Replacing A Damaged United States Passport - The Required Paperwork And Fees

A passport is needed if you are going to enter or exit this country. However, you might find that you have a damaged American passport. You also know that a damaged passport isn't acceptable. If there is anything that they can't read, you can have some serious trouble in another country. This is why you need to get a damaged US passport replacement.

There is a number of paperwork that is needed to get this done. When you do this, you can find that you are well on your way to getting your passport. However, there are some different types needed. You also have to make sure that you fill out this paperwork correctly. Here we will tell you what forms you will need and a bit of insider knowledge so that you don't have any problems.

Let's look at the first form you will need. This is the DS-11 form. Now, you can fill this form out. You can find this online. However, the one thing that you need to make sure that you don't do is that you don't sign and date it. This has to be signed and dated when you are at the passport agency in your local area. If you sign it ahead of time, they will make you start over so that you can sign it in front of them.

The other form that you will have to fill out is called the DS-64 form. This is the form that tells them that you had a passport before but one out of three things has happened. These things are you lost it, had it damaged or you damaged it. The thing you want to note about this is that they want specific detail. If you don't have this, then they won't accept your request.

The next thing that you need is that you need to then prove to them that you are legal. You can do this by showing proof with your birth certificate. If you don't have a United States birth certificate, then something from naturalization can work in your favor as well.

Before your passport application can be sent to the State Department, you have to have something else. These would be the two pictures that you have to have. However, there are some specifics that you have to have as well. The things you have to comply with are that the picture has to be two inches by two inches. It also has to be taken against a white drop.

Now, there are some of you who might need these as soon as possible. If you are in this position, you'll need overnight passport services and proof that you are going to take this trip quickly. The other thing you will have to do is pay them. How much you fee will be will all depend on a number of things you are trying to accomplish. However, you do have to pay a State Department processing fee.

Now that you have a better understanding of these papers and such, you can get your damaged United States passport replacement. Why put your travel plans on hold? You might have thought it would be harder than this. While this is a bit that you have to do, it's nothing compared to what some have to go through. So get to traveling but get that passport taken care of. Don't take a risk by not doing so.

You can also find this article published on Replacing A Damaged United States Passport - The Required Paperwork And Fees, and on the tag pages American passport, birth certificate, getting your passport, Passport, passport replacement.